LARGE SMITH DEMONSTRATION GIVEN TODAY

Hordes Hired Performers Lead Parade for Governor

Expect to Finish Democrat Platform by Late Tonight.

K. O. P. ATTACKED

Nominations Go On This Afternoon—New York Executive and McAdoo Easily Favorites.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Having given a strenuous but brief demonstration for William Gibbs McAdoo, the democratic national convention today plunged into a riproaring demonstration for Alfred Smith. Like the McAdoo demonstration yesterday, the Smith show today was aided and pushed by hired performers, hundreds of whom marched into the hall from the outside bearing banners and noise-making devices.

The galleries and guest sections were obviously filled with friends of the New York governor because of their continuous series of cries, yells, howls and whistles. Probably half of the delegate space gave no evidence of joining the movement. Children as young as three were used but bellowed lustily when their fathers attempted to balance them on a high rail above the speakers' stand.

The tentative draft of the new platform containing alternative proposals relative to the Ku Klux Klan and League of Nations was submitted to the platform committee by the sub-committee. Whether there will be a fight on these plans depends upon the action of the full committee. The entire platform will probably be ready to submit to the convention tomorrow. The sub-committee was presided over by William Jennings Bryan today in the absence of Chairman Homer Cummings, who stayed up all night preparing the two planks.

There was considerable committee discussion regarding a plank dealing with corruption in political office. As presented, the plank scores the republican party for its connection with the oil scandal and attacks Albert Fall.

After the committee had been in session more than two hours, Chairman Cummings arrived. It was hardly possible for the platform to be completed before late tonight, Cummings asserted.

Meanwhile the demonstration for Governor Smith drowned out the bands of the convention hall. It was an hour and a half after Roosevelt finished his speech that the chairman pounded for order. He directed the secretary to continue calling the roll of states. Delaware was next and Senator Bayard took the speaker's stand to nominate William Saulsbury, former Delaware senator. David Houston, former secretary of agriculture, was nominated by the Illinois delegates. A smattering of applause but no demonstrations were given Soulsbury and Houston. Nominating and seconding addresses still occupy the convention at 3 o'clock in the afternoon with no indication when adjournment will be.

TWO COAL MINES WILL CLOSE SOON

Climax, Fork Ridge Preparing to Close —Former to Resume Operation In About Six Weeks.

It was announced this afternoon from the office of the Climax Coal Company that their mine would close down Saturday for a period of six weeks. It is thought that by the expiration of that period enough business from other sources will have accumulated to warrant the reopening of the mine.

The Fork Ridge Coal and Coke company also announces that its mine will close July 1 for an indefinite time. The date of reopening will depend on future business conditions.

M'ADOO NAMED LATE YESTERDAY

Phelan, Nominating Wilson's Son-In-Law, Cites His Record.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 26.—Marked by thunderous applause and demonstrations the name of Williams Gibbs McAdoo yesterday afternoon was presented to the democratic convention as a candidate for president of the United States.

The nominating speech was made by Senator James Phelan of California, and at every reference to the name of McAdoo and to the great service he has rendered to the nation, delegates, alternates and a great part of the audience which packed the garden, joined in the ovation to the former secretary of the treasury.

"This year demands the return of triumphant Democracy," said Mr. Phelan. "The progressives of the nation look to the Democratic party for their leader. Shall we give him to them? There is room in America for but one reactionary party, and the Republicans have preempted that field. The party's chance of success depends upon its choice for candidate for the Presidency of this man."

Tracing Mr. McAdoo's career both in the government service and in private life, Mr. Phelan declared that the "vast problems of the continent are his familiar themes; the prosperity of farm and forest and mine, factors of natural growth and strength and transportation and irrigation, these are not strange subjects born of restricted environment and narrow outlook."

"America was the protest of the free men of the world against the religious bigotry and persecutions of the past; and it is a matter of constitutional principle and precept to respect and protect the freedom of thought and speech—of religion, of press, of assembly.

"McAdoo stands for the supremacy of the law and for the enforcement of the law—the solemn duty of the executive. The treaty making power and the Congress, under the Constitution and Bill of Rights, prescribe the law and that is the only law the President knows. It is guide for his action and the ready weapon of the Republic for its defense against the assaults of the ignorant or the intolerant."

ROOSEVELT PUTS SMITH'S NAME TO CONVENTION

Roaring Demonstration Greets Him From First.

GIVES HIS QUALITIES

Says New York Man Stands On Clean Cut Platform—Has Been Elected to Office 17 Times.

Associated Press.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 26.—Four years ago in the democratic national convention at San Francisco, a young man in the flower of his youth seconded the nomination of Governor Al Smith and won for himself the vice-presidential nomination. Today the same young man, still rich in the vigor of mind but fighting gamely against the creeping inroads of infantile paralysis was assisted to the platform to nominate Governor Al Smith for the presidency. He was Franklin D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy and manager of Smith's campaign.

When in the course of the roll call for nomination of presidential candidates, Connecticut yielded to New York and the convention realized that the crippled but smiling young man on the platform was going to nominate the governor, a roar went up that fairly lifted Madison Square Garden roof. With the assistance of men about him, Roosevelt lifted himself to his feet on his crutches, making his way to the speaker's table laid aside the crutches and began his address.

The roaring demonstration continued until Roosevelt quieted it. When he started speaking the convention was more silent than at any time since it entered the contest over delegates yesterday. Delegates and galleries listened attentively and Smith delegates and boosters responded repeatedly throughout the speech with sharp crashes of applause.

As Roosevelt approached the end of his speech, applause was more and more frequent at his thrusts against the opposition and his recitation of the record of his candidate. Again and again there were bursts of cheering led by the New York delegation. In the meantime the aisles of the convention floors and galleries had become so crowded with those planning to participate in the Smith demonstration that the doors of the convention hall were locked to all but delegates. Every seat and every square foot of the standing space was occupied.

Mr. Roosevelt told the convention its candidate "must be able to stand upon" a clear cut plank against 'corruption in government," adding that "our Governor for over 20 years in public office has withstood the white light of publicity upon whom it had pitilessly beaten and revealed only spotless integrity."

"With him we can win. This governor of ours is the most dangerous adversary that the Republican party ever had to fear and you, in convention here assembled, owe it to the nation to choose a candidate whose name spells victory. He has been elected to office seventeen times. * * * This is an overwhelming demonstration of ability to command the confidence of the great electorate."

FIGHT ON WEST END STREET TO END TOMORROW

Commissioners Will Decide Whether to Accept.

COOKE IS OPPOSED

Property Owners Protest Condition of New Thoroughfare, Tell of Unheeded Complaints.

Differences between West End property owners and the city commissioners are still unsettled though there are prospects that the final verbal skirmish will take place tomorrow morning.

Motion of Commissioner J. E. Evans that the commission and property owners make further inspection of the newly completed work on West Cumberland and Petersboro avenue was passed though Commissioner Charles E. Cooke voted against it. Mr. Cooke had previously made a motion that the city notify the Humbard Construction company that the work would not be accepted until the defects complained of in the formal protest of the property owners are remedied. No action was taken on his motion.

William Lowe, attorney for the property owners, made a strong argument urging the city not to accept the work until it is done in a manner that will satisfy the property owners and done "proper in the judgment of the board of commissioners and not the judgment of the engineer who, as shown by the evidence, was not there." He claimed further that the evidence in the case was all on the side of the property owners, that the engineer whose duty it was to inspect the work "studiously avoided" the witness stand while the investigation was in progress.

He made a proposition that disinterested engineers be brought to examine the work and, if in their opinion, the work has been done according to specifications, the property owners will pay for the extra expense. The mayor instructed him to put the proposition in writing.

Commissioner Evans said that the commission should have been notified before the work was completed if it was being done in an unsatisfactory manner. A. C. Carr stated that he told the commission of a bad drainage condition but nothing was done about it. Mr. Lowe claimed that citizens were not required to keep a check on the work and make constant complaint, that the engineer placed in charge by the city was required to have the work done such complaints.

Possible Golf Champion of State Is Now One of Eight

KIWANIANS HOSTS TO ALL GOLFERS

Visitors Welcomed to Middlesboro In Banquet Last Night at Hotel.

Kiwanians were hosts to the visiting golfers at a banquet at the Cumberland hotel last night. The meeting was attended by nearly all Kiwanians as well as local and visiting golfers.

A. P. Liebig was the Kiwanis chairman of the meeting. He made a brief address in which he warmly welcomed the visitors to the city. Stating then the Kiwanis club had no program for the occasion, he turned the meeting over to F. P. Scales, president of the Kentucky Golf Association.

Mr. Scales spoke briefly of his pleasure in welcoming the visitors to Middlesboro. He announced that the business meeting of the association would be held in the office of John M. Miller, state secretary, at 8:15 o'clock tonight. Each club, he stated, should be represented at the meeting in order that state officers might be selected and the tournament site for next year chosen. Mr. Scales then introduced Senator Joe Bosworth who made an address of welcome.

Senator Bosworth told with an eloquence peculiar to him of how earnestly and warmly he welcomed the golfers to Middlesboro, "the gem nestled in the mountain tops."

"You will like Middlesboro," he declared, 'you will like it so well that you will want to build a shack on our mountain sides. A hut among the mountains is better than a mansion at any other place." The speaker then told how Mr. Scales came here from Louisville and organized the Middlesboro Golf club.

Music was furnished by the Volunteer Five orchestra, a variety of pleasing selections being played.

The First Flight Players Finish Their Second Round.

SCALES IS DEFEATED

Semi-Finals to Be Played Tomorrow and Finals Saturday —Must Play 36 Holes a Day.

BY HOWARD W. HARTLEY.

Five golfers from Louisville, one from Lexington, one from Ft. Mitchell and one from Barbourville entered the second round of the Kentucky State Amateur Championship here this afternoon after emerging victorious in the initial round of match play.

The personnel of the second round by pairings is as follows: Alex Bush, Louisville, vs. Chris Brinke, Louisville; Gail Alexander, Lexington, vs. Lewis Tachau, Louisville; John Marshall, Louisville, Vs. William Dishman, Barbourville; Carl Hilker, Ft. Mitchell, vs. Ted Ottman, Louisville.

Results of the first round were: Marshall defeated C. D. King of Louisville, 5 up and 4 to play; Tachau won from Milton Trost by default. Trost being forced to retire after being 7 down on account of illness; Brinke defeated Frank Buchanan, Ft. Mitchell, 4 up and 3; Hilker, defeated William Winburn, Winchester, 2 up; Alexander defeated F. P. Scales, 4 up and 2; Dishman defeated Frank Weidemer, Louisville, 3 up and 1; Bush defeated Dr. A. L. Bass, Louisville, 1 up, 19 holes; Ottman defeated James Bean, Danville, 2 up and 1.

The overtime match between Bass and Bush was easily the outstanding feature of the first round. The battle seesawed from start to finish and was leveled on the eighteenth green when Bush holed a 12 foot putt. The drives were long and straight on the nineteenth and both averaged 200 yards with their brassies. The break came when Bush, using his iron, laid the ball eleven feet from the cup. He holed out in five, a birdie for the 563 yard distance.

The cards of the match were as follows:

Bass
Out	855	444	544	43
In	746	573	535	45—88
Bush
Out	664	455	455	44
In	656	354	444	41—85

Extra Hole—Bush, 5; Bass, 6.

Bush was the medalist in the qualifying round. His match this afternoon with Brinke, former state champion, promises to be a real classic. The Tachau-Alexander tilt will also draw a gallery. Marshall, who defeated King this morning under raps, is not expected to have much difficulty in eliminating Dishman and Ottman should defeat Hilker quite easily, the Louisville city champion having had more tournament experience. If these predictions hold good, the semi finals tomorrow and the finals Saturday will be strictly all-Louisville affairs.

Both the first and second rounds will be played today and tomorrow the semi finals, of thirty-six holes, is the feature of the program. Thus players in the championship and second flight must play thirty-six holes today, tomorrow and in the finals Saturday.

Pairings for the lower flights are as follows:

Second Flight

Robert Smith, Lexington, vs. H. M. Ferris, Louisville.

D. Blanchard, Stearns, vs. C. R. Ramsey, Pineville.

Wesley Casper, Louisville, vs. Bob Low, Pineville.

E. T. Kirk, Maysville, vs. Robert Priest, Winchester.

M. C. Kirk, Maysville, vs. W. H. Reese, Pineville.

Irvin Cruse, Louisville, vs. E. Settle, Pineville.

J. R. Ramey, Middlesboro, vs. D. Y. Pendleton, Winchester.

J. V. Van Dever, Lexington, vs. J. N. Butler, Stearns.

Third Flight

J. H. Lawson, Barbourville, vs. A. B. Reeves, Middlesboro.

R. B. Betts, Winchester, vs. J. C. Steidle, Louisville.

G. Overbacher, Louisville, vs. S. Shepard, Ft. Mitchell.

Fields Refuses To Join In Anti-Klan Demonstration

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 26.—Despite numerous appeals from some of the Kentucky delegates and those of other States, Gov. William J. Fields, chairman of Kentucky's convention delegation, refused to allow the Kentucky standard to be carried in the demonstration following the vigorous denouncement of the Ku Klux Klan by Forney Johnston of Alabama in his speech nominating Senator Oscar Underwood, outright opponent of that secret and masked organization.

Kentucky's attitude during the lengthy and somewhat surprising anti-klan demonstration was decidedly the most interesting development in connection with activities of the Bluegrass State delegation at yesterday's session of the convention.

Kentucky and Texas were the only States on the left side of the convention hall in which delegation leaders refused to allow their standards to join in the parade.

More than thirty State standards participated, and none of those that did remain in their sockets were as prominently located as the Bluegrass and Lone Star banners. The parading delegates as they passed by the Texas and Kentucky delegations made futile pleas to the leaders to join in the demonstration and occasionally taunted them for refusing to do so.

Most significant in connection with Kentucky's attitude during the anti-klan demonstration, however, was the fact that nearly a dozen of the thirty-two Kentucky delegates refused to follow Governor Fields' leadership and openly joined in the applause and approval of the anti-klan demonstration.

While Kentucky's Governor and delegation chairman sat in his chair holding firmly to the Kentucky banner and refusing to allow it to be taken out of its socket, nearly a dozen of the Kentuckians in his delegation were heartily manifesting their approval of Mr. Johnston's denouncement of the Ku Klux. Some of them merely applauded; others stood up on their chairs and whooped; while three or four joined in the parade under the Pennsylvania banner, since there was only one Kentucky standard and Governor Fields would not release his hold on it.

When the demonstration began, J. B. Wise of Hardin County, who had been carrying the Kentucky banner in the previous demonstrations, jumped to his feet and reached for the Kentucky standard, but he was not quick enough. The Kentucky Governor seized the banner and shook his head negatively. Mr. Wise looked at Mr. Fields for a minute, released his hold on the stock and then, turning to some of his fellow-delegates nearby, declared:

"Well, I'm going into this parade, anyhow, even if the Governor won't let us have the Kentucky standard. Come on and let's join in."

Several of the delegates joined Mr. Wise and started off in the parade with the Pennsylvania group. Little more than half of the Kentucky delegates were in the convention hall at the time of the anti-Ku Klux Klan demonstration and it was therefore impossible to ascertain the exact division of sentiment on that issue within the Kentucky delegation.

FROM DAWN TO DUSK

All the thrills have not gone out of our daily life and if we have not climbed Everest we have linked the Atlantic with the Pacific between sunrise on the one coast and dusk on the other.

It is entirely probable that within the next ten years such a performance will be commonplace and the daily habit among Americans, who may be expected to be even more in a hurry then than they are now. But as matters stand, here is a feat of pluck and endurance, of skill and of mechanical craftsmanship, in which the element of luck must be counted in. Luck we may define as that careful scrutiny and preparation that takes care of every untoward eventuality in anticipation and leaves nothing, or nearly nothing, for the chapter of accidents.

Lieut. Russell Maughan is an army aviator in no particular different from aviators all thru the service. He does not indulge in dramatics. He does not feature his own personality. He accepts his selection as a matter of duty. He pulls off the incredible stunt of a flight of something short of 3,000 miles as a part of the day's work and with scarcely a heightening of the pulse. Three thousand miles. It is a distance that, starting at Brest on the French Coast, would take one across Europe, across Russia and beyond theUral Mountains in Turkestan. Three thousand miles. We would say at a guess that it exceeds the distance from Spitzbergen to the toe of Italy. Practically that means that, in a day's winging, all the older civilizations might easily have been included, traversed and left behind.

It is hard to visualize the full significance of such a feat. When Bleriot flew across the English Channel, a matter of twenty miles or thereabouts, and achieved after repeated failures the very crown of aeronautics, the pulse of millions quickened. That was only the day before yesterday, if one may be allowed a little license as to yesterday. But already air travel between Paris and London is as commonplace, as regular, as independent of weather conditions, as the ordinary mail route, London to Dover, Dover to Calais, Calais to Paris. In the same way we may shortly expect mail service between New York and San Francisco, by relays, not in one flight, within the twenty-four hours.

It is a very gratifying exploit alike on the side of American courage and American mechanics. It is being admirably paralleled by the interesting, but less spectacular round-the-world trip of the aviators who are taking their time rather than taking chances. And the flattering thought is that these are American boys. This we can say with no reflection on the British or on the French; these, without entering into direct competition, are likewise providing an exhibition of high emprise and the finest kind of sportsmanlike spirit.

SOME FACTS OF STRIKING INTEREST

In 1922 the South, with a population of 37,500,000, expended on public school education $323,067,000, which was $107,000,000 more than the United States expended for similar purposes in 1900.

The expenditure of the South for public school work in 1922 was only about 15 per cent less than the total spent for the same purpose by the entire country as late as 1906.

The deposits in all national, state and private banks in the South jumped from $860,000,000 in 1900 to $6,500,000,000 in 1923, or nearly as much as the total deposits in all financial institutions in the United States in 1900.

The value of manufactured products of the South in 1921, the latest available Census figures, was $6,877,000,000, which was more than four times the value of 1900 and twice as great as 1910.

The cotton mill capital of the South exceeds $1,000,000,000, as compared with $361,000,000 in 1910, and is greater than the total capital thus invested in the United States in 1910.

The value of the mineral products of the South rose from $369,000,000 in 1910 to $1,489,000,000 in 1922.

In 1922 the South mined 188,900,000 tons of coal, which is more than three times its coal output in 1900.

The South produced in 1923 362,000,000 barrels of petroleum, which is 150,000,000 barrels more than the United States produced as late as 1910.

The value of the farm crops of the South in 1923 amounted to $6,127,400,000, or $1,400,000,000 more than the total value of farm products in the United States in 1900.

The foregoing facts, and others in this summary, are gathered from "The Blue Book of Southern Progress," 1924 edition, which has just been issued by the Manufacturers Record. In that publication a thousand and one facts of vital interest to the South and to the nation are to be found. Here, for instance, is the showing in regard to the foreign stock population in the South in contrast with the rest of the country:

The lowest proportion of foreign stock in any section of the country is in the East South-Central States of Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, with only 3 per cent foreign stock and only .8 per cent of this foreign born. The South Atlantic States have 6 per cent foreign stock and 2.1 per cent foreign born, while the West South-Central States of Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri have 13.5 per cent of foreign stock and only 4.7 per cent foreign born.

In New England, on the contrary, over 60 per cent of the population is of foreign stock and 25.3 per cent is foreign born. In the Middle Atlantic States over 53 per cent is of foreign stock and over one-fifth is foreign born. In the East North-Central States over 42 per cent is foreign stock, and in the West Central States and on the Pacific Coast about 44 per cent is foreign stock.

Only about one-fifth of the population of New York city and Chicago is of native white ancestry; that is, descendants of native white American father and mother. Rhode Island leads in foreign stock with 69 per cent, followed by Massachusetts with 66 per cent, while North Carolina has only .7 of 1 per cent, or the lowest in the Union of foreign stock to total population. South Carolina has 1 per cent; Georgia, 1.6 per cent; Mississippi, 1.5 per cent; Alabama, 2.2 per cent; and Virginia, 3 per cent.—Manufacturers' Record.

THE ADVERTISING EXPERIENCE OF MR. HILL

Yesterday, Manager Hill of the Lovett Fruit and Produce Co. placed on the local market a car load of California cantaloupes from the Imperial valley. The car was marketed through direct sales and the medium of a half page of advertising in the Daily News yesterday. The car was all sold at noon today. No bills, no posters, no bill boards; just straight newspaper advertising that went to the people that bought and are buying the goods. The price was right, the publicity right and the goods were right, three mighty factors in a sales campaign of any kind and the clean up went over big.

We will venture a small wager that the fact that Mr. Hill was marketing this car could have been shouted from every billboard and barraged on every door in town with a hand bill at thrice the cost and the results would not have been one half as gratifying as the results from this broadside of advertising news he fired in one publicity offensive. Results speak for themselves and whether advertising is sold by the square inch or the square acre, the accruing benefits for the money expended is what the advertiser is seeking. The experience of Mr. Hill is another instance of a well written ad, placed right ,selling the commodity advertised.

Americanising England

LONDON, June 26.—Great Britain eats as much ice cream every year as all the people of New York State plus two-thirds of those in Pennsylvania, according to those who manufacture it over here. Last year His Majesty's subjects consumed 20,000,000 gallons of this frozen product.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Harry B. Hunt

NEW YORK, June 26.—The Democratic committee, in preparing for the New York convention, foresaw a long-drawn-out siege. Tickets of admission to the big battle carry coupons for 15 days. This provides for a longer session than that attending the record deadlock in Baltimore in 1912 when Champ Clark, with a majority vote in his favor, was unable to pile up the necessary two-thirds and went down to defeat when the deadlock broke in favor of Woodrow Wilson.

Just as Clark held a majority at Baltimore, but lost the nomination, so are McAdoo and Smith likely to hold a majority at some time during the balloting in New York, only to find the necessary 732 votes still beyond attainment.

The accumulating bitterness in the battle between these two camps, each of which will hold avote at least sufficient to veto the hopes of the other, makes the nomination of either of these first ballot leaders most improbable.

Early maneuvering among delegation leaders makes it appear that Ralston may be the first beneficiary of a considerable part of the McAdoo strength if and when the breakup begins.

Ralston is second choice for a very considerable block of McAdoo delegates, particularly from the middle west and south. The first consideration for these delegates will be the incorporation, in the party platform of a specific and clear-cut plank dealing with agricultural relief. With such a plank adopted, they feel that Ralston, next to McAdoo, offers the best chance as a candidate who can stand pat on it sympathetically, and at the same time hold other elements of support necessary to carry an election.

Next to a real dirt-farmer candidate, such as Davis of Kansas, who could carry none but agricultural states, Ralston is presented as the man most satisfactory to agriculture.

Next to Ralston, the second line candidate developing early strength that makes him appear as a sizeable factor in the final showdown is John W. Davis of West Virginia.

Davis, although presented as West Virginia's favorite son, is a New York attorney, with Morgan & Co., among his chief clients. His friends claim he will inherit a large block of the Smith ballots whenever the strength of the New York governor begins to disintegrate. This bequest, however, must come at first from Smith delegates outside New York, for New York's 90 votes will stick through thick and thin to the magnetic man from the East Side. Doubtless they will vote to make the final selection unanimous should someone other than Smith be the nominee, but they will do so in a daze, scarcely realizing what has happened.

For, while the following of other candidates can be measured by the usual political considerations, that of Al Smith in his home-state delegation partakes of an emotional fervor that defies analysis.

To them he is the one heroic figure in the convention. They refuse to lift their eyes beyond him even to consider second choice possibilities. They admit of no second choice.

There is a crusading, almost religious spirit in their championship that amounts to worship. Just as the old story of the native New Yorker's geographic horizon ending with the Hudson river was correct, everything west of that being wilderness, so is the political vision of New Yorkers at the convention limited to Al Smith. He is the beginning and the end of their hopes, the only thing they will consider even for a moment.

BETHURUM ASSAILS SACKETT SUPPORT

Opens Campaign at Williamsburg, Same Time As Walter Flippin

MT. VERNON, June 26.—Judge B. P. Bethurum, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator and Walter Flippin of Somerset, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Eleventh District, opened their campaigns here Monday and Charles Finley of Williamsburg, Republican State central committeeman, spoke in behalf of Congressman J. M. Robsion.

Judge Bethurum, a former resident of Rockcastle County, greeted his former fellow-citizens and at the outset read a letter from State Prohibition Director Sam Collins, under whom Bethurum had served, endorsing him.

Turning his attention to his opponent, Fred M. Sackett, Louisville capitalist, he said that the enemies he had made, coupled with the corrupting influences of politics and interests that did not approve his candidacy, were behind the Louisville man.

Suggestion to Mothers: If you're saving Orange-Crush for unexpected guests, put the bottle in a safe place. Better yet, remove temptation. Keep a supply always on ice—just for family treat.

Here are six reasons why it's so delicious: (1) The natural fruit oil of oranges—which gives that delicate and distinctive flavor; (2) The natural acid of citrus fruits; (oranges, lemons and limes)—which gives the tang; (3) Orange juice; (4) Carbonated water—which gives "zip," sparkle, purity; (5) U. S. Certified food color—which makes it as appealing to the eye as to the taste; (6) Pure cane sugar.

That's all. My, what a drink!

Ex-Service Men Advertise Big July 4th Celebration at Junction and Fork Ridge.

Five hundred men formed enthusiastic audiences to the ex-service men's music and speaking at Fork Ridge and the Junction last night. Every man signified his intention of attending the ex-service men's celebration in Middlesboro on the Fourth of July.

An automobile has been "camouflaged" with signs indicating the features to be presented here on the holiday and this wil be taken on the other rally trips. The journey to Tazewell and New Tazewell will be made tonight by the party of boosters. An advance agent has gone there today to advertise the event.

Those eligible to take part and urged to attend the ex-service men's program are all men who have ever served in the United States army, navy or marines at any time or place. It is hoped that the feeling of camaradie which exists between all men of former service will be strengthed and renewed by this big public rally. The stunts which they have provided are well calculated to give the general public an impression of the humorous, rather than the serious, side of daily life with Uncle Sam.

Jimmy Smith announces that he has the contracts signed for the prize fights between Tiger, Toro, and Tot Wilson, welterweights, and Jack Darby and Kid Perkins, lightweights. Building of the ring will be done within the next few days and other preparations made for the prize fight and baseball game, the only events which will cost anything to the attendants of the celebration. As a financial precaution, rain insurance has been taken out on the sports so that the local men will not be losers if bad weather makes the fight impossible.

FOLLY
By Vivian Yelser Laramore

The moon has made me weary
With its silver and its song,
Such ardor in so old a thing
Is wrong, all wrong.

It should be limping silently
Across a leaden sky
Or grumbling at the cloud hills
The wind piles high.

It should be teaching little moons
The proper way to shine,
Instead of singing sonnets
To each adoring pine.

Keller—Goforth Wedding

The wedding of Miss Annie Burbin Goforth and Mr. William H. Keller, Jr., was solemnized at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Goforth, at Cumberland Gap, the Rev. C. L. Nisbet officiating, with a small audience of relatives and friends. The Keller party motored down to Cumberland Gap Tuesday morning, accompanied by the Rev. C. L. Nisbet, returning after the ceremony. The young couple will make their home in Norton, where Mr. Keller is associated with his father, W. H. Keller, Sr., in the electrical supply and radio business. He is a popular young business man, with a host of friends who wish them much happiness and are prepared to give the young bride a royal welcome in her new home. Mrs. Keller is one of the most attractive and popular young women of her native community and already has made friends with those in her new home whom she has already met.—Norton Coalfield Progress.

"THREE WISE FOOLS"

King Vidor Production-Goldwyn—Seven Reels

(Reviewed by Frank Shelton)

Here's a picture! One that is so far above most of the features being released today that it stands out like an oasis in the desert. "Three Wise Fools" was a huge success on the stage. It ran a year on Broadway and has been presented in most of the larger cities of the country. Patrons of the so-called legitimate theatre took it to their hearts, and their plaudits kept it moving along to triumph. But wait till these same folks see the screen version. They'll forget the stage play in telling their friends about the shadow stage production.

Imagine Claude Gillingwater, Alec B. Francis and the veteran of the footlights, William H. Crane, assuming the roles of the famous Masonic triumvirate, those three delightful old bachelors, the modern three musketeers, who adopt a daughter and are rejuvenated. These three sterling actors are going to capture the hearts of everyone who has the good fortune to see this picture. Their names are sufficient proof of the excellence of their work. Eleanor Boardman comes into her own. As Sidney Fairchild, the adopted girl, this charming actress displays heretofore unsuspected emotional ability. Brinsley Shaw contributes a colorful portraiture in the role of "Benny the Duck." William Haines as Gordon Schuyer, the lucky fellow who eventually wins Sidney for his own, is an excellent selection for the part. There is so much good acting that it is impossible to tell about it all in this limited space.
